

Taurus 2021 Horoscope

Over the last couple of decades, the one constant in your life has been change over and over again. Fantastic information, Taurus: 2021 brings a long-awaited balance to the combination - finally. With Jupiter and Saturn coming together in Aquarius and your challenging tenth house, you'll be able to turn your visionary thoughts into a few concrete goals that you'll pursue with typical Taurus tenacity. Don't worry: with innovator Uranus still on the chart until 2026, life will be anything but boring. However, if you want to observe consequences for your own efforts, you may do so in 2021. Pro tip: Therefore, should you surround yourself with things, align yourself with your winning group and VIPs (while remaining humble, of course). Simplify, prioritize, and don't settle.

Firm, lasting relationships would be the taste of several Taurus, as well as Jupiter and Saturn combined on your stubborn tenth house for many 2021, you're playing for the long haul. But don't rule out tantalizing discoveries! (This sometimes happens within the vessel of a devoted commitment, you understand). Not only does bugbear Uranus spend the year on your sign, making you extra spontaneous, but when Jupiter electrifies your vacant eleventh house from May 13 to July 28, you can rebel against structures that feel confining. The trick to this? Nourishing both your side and your brave side. On November 5, Venus ends a four-month journey through Capricorn and the adventurous, free-spirited ninth house. Cross-cultural connections sizzle and long-distance relationships flourish. Looser boundaries can also be enjoyable for most couples, but be warned! When your amorous judgment world turns retrograde for a few months on December 19, chemistry experiments could burst if you rush into anything - or without obvious agreements.

Three of the four eclipses this year bill your money axis, showing hidden opportunities to make and learn. You work hard for money; make sure it returns the favor today by investing in things that increase in value or deliver compound interest. Career goals will bring several Tauruses into this vicinity of obsession through Jupiter and Saturn in your demanding tenth house. Focus on the future, as this could be one of the most successful years you've had in over a decade! Are you trying to reinvent yourself and take a new path? The Jupiter-Saturn combination can help you transition. Don't throw the baby out with the bathwater or quit five minutes before the big payday. Past adventures are building blocks for potential gains, and you could get one last windfall from a job you've been doing for decades - especially near the Lunar Eclipse in Taurus on November 19!

This is fantastic news for the methodical sign, as you fully grasp the game-changing energy of a regular. Then get a practice set up, even daily. Along with Jupiter and Saturn equally in your tenth house of government, call on specialists like trainers, coaches, and nutritionists if you need assistance. Thinking of trying something unsafe, like rock climbing or riding your bike through traffic? Learn the right posture and invest in the right equipment. This really isn't the time of year to risk injury.

Busy bulls won't have enough time to toast the city in 2021, but don't let relationships with your VIP friends and family members falter. Block out time slots on your calendar, such as Sunday dinners or even Tuesday game nights. Planning ahead will likely be crucial, even if you only get together once a year or for a seasonal holiday. Along with your esteemed tenth house triggered by Jupiter and Saturn in Aquarius, there's a non-existent line between interaction and networking. Plant yourself among people of notable status. Join associations or get nominated for the outstanding society. This "one like" transit will connect you with brilliant personalities, iconoclasts, and activists!
